

DALY CITY LIONS PLAN EXCURSION TO SCOUTS CAMP

In line with the interest of local Lions in the Boy Scouts and their work, the members of the Daly City Lions Club will visit their summer camp, at Memorial Park, on Sunday, June 26.

The trip as planned will be of two fold benefit, as a fine outing for local Lions and their families, and something of a demonstration that the club is taking a keen interest in the Scouts and their work.

Basket lunches will be the order, and a generous picnic spread at the camp. It is planned to meet at 8 o'clock Sunday morning and travel as a unit over a designated route to the park.

The luncheon meeting of the Lions Club last Monday was enlivened by the discovery, or as one Lion remarked, "the makings" of a quartet, and Messrs. Jeff Beeson, Bill McGregor, Bill Lantheaume and Ernie Mico promise to get better and better, ably assisted by Prof. T. E. Goudey at the piano.

Vice-President Claude Rich gave an interesting talk on "Realty Brokerage and Values," giving an insight into both the buyers' and sellers' viewpoint.

AN ENJOYABLE VACATION IN THE GREAT NORTHWEST

Mr. and Mrs. H. Warshawski and twin daughters are home again, following a months' vacation trip to Portland, Seattle, Vancouver and other northwestern points. They spent three weeks in and around Portland, being entertained by Mr. Warshawski's brother, who saw to it that they made the acquaintance of the beauty spots of that section. During that time they motored along the Columbia river highway a distance of 150 miles. They had intended to make the Hood river loop, but on reaching Hood River City they learned that they could go no farther because of the snow. They also made another 150 mile trip to Government camp, where they found the ground covered with snow and engaged in a snowball battle, in which it is reported that Mrs. Warshawski came out victorious.

They journeyed from Portland to Seattle, where they spent three days enjoying the beauties of that city, after which they boarded the Princess Kathleen, a beautiful boat, for Vancouver, B. C., stopping at Victoria for a short time. They report having a wonderful time on the boat ride, and enjoying the scenery to the utmost. One of the impressions that will remain regarding Vancouver is that there were few new buildings, but many old ones that looked as though they could stand a bath.

It may be of interest to know that Portland's street car fares are 10 cents; Seattle 10 cents, or three for 25 cents; and in Vancouver 6 cents. Which would indicate that we have a very reasonable rate in this section.

POPULAR SCHOOL TEACHER TO VISIT SONOMA COUNTY

Miss Winifred McGrath, primary grade teacher at the Woodrow Wilson school, is to leave on a two weeks' vacation in Sonoma county in the very near future. She will be accompanied by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John J. McGrath, of 2819 Howard street, San Francisco.

Miss McGrath has been teaching at the Woodrow Wilson school for the past eight years and has made legions of friends among the parents of former pupils. The first grade in any institution of learning is a most important one and the success that many graduates of Woodrow Wilson school have achieved can be properly credited to the foundation they received as pupils in Miss McGrath's class.

Those present were: Masters Warren Healy, Walter Grey, Charles Augustien, Bobby McDonald, Vincent Barasota; Misses Dorothy Lewis, Ellen Peterson, Lorraine McDonald, Lorraine Barasota, Jessie Augustien; Mrs. Turner, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Grey, Mrs. McDonald, Mrs. Al. Cobleigh, Sr., Mrs. Barasota, and Mrs. Augustien. The table and room was decorated in a most patriotic style with red, white and blue decorations.

PIONEER WOMAN IS CALLED AWAY

Mrs. Isobel Silicani, wife of Joseph Silicani and mother of Fred, Joseph, Harry, Robert and Albert Silicani, and Mrs. Alice Jones and Mrs. Ida Callan, died last Friday, June 17, at the age of 77.

She was the daughter of Robert Inches, a resident of San Pedro during the early days. She was born in Australia, coming here when but a child.

When she grew to womanhood her hand was sought and won by Joseph Silicani, who was the handsome young man of his day.

Together they lived the happy life of the farmers, some years with plenty and, too, many other years not so good, but they took things as they came, never complaining, while a house full of children grew up around them.

Their home was open to all. The rich and the poor found the same welcome there. What they had they gave to all who came with generous hearts, and many were the callers. It was the good woman's proud boast that no one ever went hungry from her door.

During the land excitement of Ocean Shore railroad days, she sold her San Pedro property and came to live in Colma, where she enjoyed taking part in very pleasant affairs that happened.

One by one she saw her children married happily and enjoyed the lively company of many grandchildren. When help was needed she never hesitated to do her full share for those of her own family, and outsiders were remembered also. She did not forget even those who had no one else to care for them.

So many kind acts were done by her that numerous blessings were heaped upon her, and she deserved all of them.

For the last decade she was seen often at the numerous whist parties. She loved to play and pretended that she wished to win, but she cared most for the pleasure of meeting her friends, whom the parties gathered together. She would forget the cards, if some one spoke of the happy times of long ago.

She passed away, perfectly satisfied, just as she had lived. At the funeral parlors large numbers of people called to pay their last respects and the many floral pieces were all offerings of grateful love to one who had been kind-hearted to everybody.

Her funeral took place on Monday and she was laid to rest in Woodlawn. Joseph Silicani, the husband of the deceased, is now on a trip to Europe.

Thus ends the career of one more of the few remaining pioneers of this county.

DALY CITY BASEBALL TEAM DEFEATS SAN BRUNO NINE

The Daly City Firemen's baseball team played the San Bruno firemen Sunday morning at San Bruno. It was a hotly contested game, the score being 8 to 7 in favor of the Daly City firemen. They had to play overtime on account of a tie which was broken by one of our fine baseball players, Mr. Cuneo, captain of the team, deserves special mention for the excellent work he did by starting the game off right when he scored the first run in spite of a broken suspender.

MARC WORST JUNIOR OFFICER AT THE BOY SCOUT CAMP

Marc Worst is treble enjoying his annual vacation at the Boy Scout Camp, near Pescadero. As junior officer and assistant to the field executive he holds a highly honored position. In addition his work as assistant Scoutmaster of San Bruno Troop 72 was so greatly appreciated that the Scout Parents' Association of that troop voted to pay his expenses at the entire camp session. Thirdly, of course, he will have as much fun as the rest of the gang.

SAN MATEO GAINS HONOR FOR SANITARY CONDITION

A signal honor has been bestowed upon the city of San Mateo by the state board of health, according to a notice received by Dr. W. C. McLean, health officer. During the year 1926 a survey of all California cities with a population of 10,000 or more shows that only eighteen pulled through the 365 day period without registering a case of typhoid fever. San Mateo was on the honor roll.

Increased Attendance at Schools

The average daily attendance of the grammar schools for the year ending June 30, 1927, was 1,238, and that of the high school was a little over 200. The increase of the grammar school is 70 over that of the previous year. During the year about 140 have been graduated. This indicates that with the two rooms which will be provided there will be ample room for all the children that may come during the coming year.

LOCAL DRILL TEAM AWARDED CUP FOR EXCELLENT WORK

On June 15, at the whist party sponsored by El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, Congressman Welch and Mr. Ringold, chairman of the McLaren Park dedication that was held a few weeks ago, attended for the main purpose of presenting the beautiful cup that was awarded at the dedication ceremonies to the drill team of El Carmelo Parlor.

Mrs. Sylvia Fischer, president of El Carmelo Parlor, and also chair-lady of the whist party, introduced the speakers to the public and members attending the whist.

Congressman Welch made a very interesting address on the growth of Daly City, and of the beautiful new recreation grounds, the McLaren Park, that will be finished in a year or two for the people of the Mission district, Excelsior district, and also the people of Daly City and Colma, where both young and old can go for rest and recreation. He also said that the county of San Mateo should be complimented on sending such a wonderful representation, such as the drill team of El Carmelo Parlor, to help out in one of the most wonderful and biggest public affairs, the dedication of the McLaren Park. He said that when the drill team of El Carmelo Parlor came marching up the line, putting on some of their beautiful exhibitions, commanded by Drill Major Laura Figoni, that everyone in the grand-stand wanted to know who they were and where they were from; and that they immediately captured the hearts of the committee and the vast crowds of people. He said that the county ought to be proud of such a wonderful specimen of womanhood, and that they certainly appreciated the co-operation of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, N. D. G. W., in helping to make this affair such a success.

After a few words from Mr. Ringold, Congressman Welch presented the beautiful cup in appreciation of the committee and the city of San Francisco, to Miss Laura Figoni, Major of the drill team. This is the second time the drill team has participated in public affairs in their new uniforms, where prizes were awarded, and brought home the bacon each time. The other time was when they won the state championship for drilling at Sacramento last September. Much credit is also due Mr. Fred Collins, who coaches the girls every Friday evening at the Daly City Auditorium. The drill team consists of twenty young ladies and the drill major, although there are a number of young ladies on the extra list, waiting for an opportunity to become a regular.

MAN MEETS DEATH IN AUTO COLLISION

Vincent Hayes, aged 21, died at the South San Francisco hospital Tuesday morning from injuries received when his automobile crashed head-on into a heavy truck on Portuguese hill, a half mile north of Tanageran track. The truck was driven by Guido Malatesta, Colma rancher, who escaped uninjured.

According to information gathered following the accident, Hayes was riding south with a party of friends at about 5 o'clock Tuesday morning, when suddenly his machine crashed head-on into the truck. The other occupants of the car were taken to the hospital and later discharged after receiving first aid treatment.

AIRPORT RUNWAY TO BE FINISHED IN MONTH

The mile runway at Mills Field, San Bruno, where the trans-Pacific flight to the Hawaiian Islands will commence, will be completed within thirty days, it has been announced by Milo F. Kent of San Francisco. Money for the building of the runway and construction of hangars has been pledged by the supervisors. In addition, the sum of $10,000 was contributed as San Francisco's share toward a purse for the successful flyers.

Thirty entrants from cities throughout the United States have announced their intention of competing in the flight. Additional entrants are expected.

MEANEST MAN STEALS BATTERY FROM AUTO

When John O'Keefe, of Menlo Park, climbed into his automobile and attempted to start his motor, he found he was unable to do so. After the machine resisted his coaxing efforts for a few minutes, O'Keefe investigated and found that someone had stolen his battery. A screw driver and a car jack were also taken. Now O'Keefe is wondering why the thief neglected to take the car.

WARN MOTORISTS TO BE CAREFUL OF CHILDREN AT PLAY

Along with the joyful plans of the motorists of California for vacation tours, the California State Automobile Association sounds a note of warning for drivers to be on their guard against the increased hazards of children at play in streets, now that "school is out."

School vacations started this month and the increased use of public thoroughfares as playfields is already noticeable, especially in towns and cities like Daly City and Colma, where the playground space is not as extensive as it will be in the future, if present plans bear fruit.

Accompanying its appeal to the motorist to be careful of children in the streets, the Automobile Association issued a plea to parents to co-operate.

"Statistics show that deaths of children, under 15 years of age, constitutes one of the most serious aspects of the automobile accident situation," says Percy E. Towne, chairman of the Automobile Association's public safety committee.

"Our Association is engaging in every possible endeavor to cut down this toll. We look for beneficial results from the system of visual education in traffic safety arranged by the Association in the schools' last term. The first of a series of striking poster lessons portrayed the dangers of playing on public thoroughfares, and this poster was displayed for a month in some 8,000 classrooms in Northern and Central California. These lessons will be resumed with the opening of the fall term.

"Parents can co-operate by home instruction in the dangers of street play and in arranging for the use of vacant lots by children, or by seeing that youngsters use yards or public playgrounds.

"Ten children have lost their lives in San Francisco so far this year, and the causes include riding on coasters, nipping rides or playing around trucks or other vehicles. A peak of automobile accident fatalities is reached in the age group of between 5 and 9 years. The most dangerous months for children from a traffic standpoint are the summer months, and it behooves all of us, motorists, parents, official agencies and organizations interested in child welfare, to do our utmost to reduce the child accident toll."

RAIDO EXPOSITION PLANS BEING MADE

Plans for the fourth annual Pacific Radio Exposition to be held in the Exposition Auditorium, San Francisco, August 20 to 27, under the auspices of the Pacific Radio Trade Association, are rapidly being formulated, according to Leo J. Meyberg, chairman of the association's exposition committee.

As an indication of the growing popularity of radio, Meyberg declares that more than 80 per cent of the exhibit space has already been taken, notwithstanding the fact that the opening of the show is still two months in the distance. He declares that the interest of the exhibitors is only a reflection of that of the public.

The San Francisco exhibition will again be America's first for the season 1927. It is predicted that the show will even surpass the record of last year.

Among the exhibitors will be some of the biggest national manufacturers. From information already at hand, Meyberg declares the show will be the most replete display of its kind ever seen on the coast.

W. J. Aschenbrenner, secretary-manager of the Pacific Radio Trade Association is now in the East in the interest of the exposition. Telegraphic advices from him tell of plans on the part of big eastern manufacturers that assure an exposition of a character worthy of New York or Chicago. Aschenbrenner has been in attendance at the show of the Radio Manufacturers Trade Association, held at Chicago for dealers only, and everywhere, he declares, he found the keenest interest in San Francisco's exposition.

DEPUTY SHERIFF CALLAGHAN RELEASED FROM HOSPITAL

Deputy Sheriff C. A. Callaghan, who was seriously wounded in a gun battle with "Indian John" Robinson last April, was released from the Community hospital Tuesday. Callaghan had been recovering from the effects of an operation performed by physicians to remove the bullets from his arm and abdomen. The deputy sheriff was shot twice before the demoted evangelist was slain by other members of the sheriff's posse which had gone out to arrest him. Due to the seriousness of the wounds, the bullets were not removed for several weeks.

BOARD DISCUSSES TRAFFIC PROBLEM

San Mateo county supervisors, at their session on Monday, failed to agree with claims advanced by F. G. Snook, chief of the state division of motor vehicles, and C. K. Harder, chief inspector of the state department, that San Mateo county needs additional traffic officers and more enforcement of laws against speeding and other violations on the county's highways.

Following talks by the chief of the division and his chief inspector, the supervisors agreed to hold a conference on the proposal to add three officers for full time duty and others for part time duty, the latter to be paid $8 per day.

Officials of the state department said that at least a clerk of the county squad, with headquarters at Redwood City, should be appointed. This would relieve Captain James Logan of the squad from clerical duties and increase efficiency of the county traffic patrol, it was stated.

The officials advised that with increased officers a concerted drive may be made against traffic violators, and pointed out that the registration of cars last year resulted in returns of $21,613.17. The cost of the county squad was $17,587.89 for the year, with fines totaling $4,944.50, leaving a net cost of $12,643.39, it was also pointed out.

District Attorney Franklin Swart said he did not agree with the theory of concerted drives on violators of traffic regulations, on the ground that such drives encourage enforcement of technicalities in the law, with the result that motorists lose sympathy with the spirit of real safety which enforcement strives to encourage.

The district attorney and the supervisors pointed out that there are eleven incorporated municipalities in the county, each enforcing regulations on the highway.

Supervisor Rosalie M. Brown of San Mateo suggested extension of the traffic patrol along the Skyline boulevard, and Chairman John W. Poole suggested more patrolling of the Redwood City-La Honda road.

The board made an extended examination Monday afternoon of the site at Colma proposed for the erection of sand and gravel bunkers by the River Sand and Gravel Company. The Colma Chamber of Commerce sent a communication to the board asking that a petition of the company for permission to erect the bunkers be granted. Attorney James T. O'Keefe, representing property owners of the district, protested. He was aided by the protest of Joseph Martinelli, a property owner. The chamber said that the $50,000 industry will be the start of an industrial district for the town of Colma.

The application of G. and B. Rossi for a license to operate a hog ranch at Colma was continued until July 5.

INTEREST IS INCREASING IN SYMPHONY CONCERTS

Interest in next Sunday's symphony concert in the Hillsborough Woodland Theatre centers in the fourth and final appearance of Nikolai Sokoloff as conductor. His series has proved thoroughly enjoyable as well as educational. The entirely modern compositions scheduled for Sunday are arousing great interest among musicians, and a large audience is anticipated by the Philharmonic sponsors.

Rachmaninoff's Symphony No. 2, in E minor, which will be heard, is one of the celebrated Russian's greatest scores. The second symphony is beautiful, melodious and skillfully orchestrated, and is popular with audiences everywhere.

The "Blessed Damosel," by Debussy, is written for women's voices and orchestra. The chorus will be made up of singers from the peninsula. Myrtle Donnelly, soprano, and Marguerite O'Donnell, contralto, have been engaged as soloists.

Strazinsky's "The Fire Bird" is music composed for a ballet. It is a fantasy, imaginative and colorful in its pictorial theme, and the music is impressionistic in form, seeking to musically suggest the movements of the ballet performers.

Sunday's program consists of but three compositions, yet it is a well balanced and contrasted concert and is one of the most interesting of the Sokoloff season.

ASSOCIATED FIREMEN HOLD MEETING IN SAN BRUNO

The regular monthly meeting of the Associated Firemen of San Mateo County was held in the San Bruno fire house last Tuesday night. Members of the various fire companies in San Mateo county from Daly City on the north to Menlo Park on the south were in attendance, and considerable business of importance to the firemen was attended to, after which the members were entertained by the San Bruno firemen.

CITIZENS' LEAGUE IS ORGANIZED FOR FIRE PREVENTION

Tentative plans for the organization of the California Forestry Vigilante Committee, a citizens' league pledged to co-operate with the State Board of Forestry in warring on careless smokers and others who touch off the flames of destruction in the state's forest and grazing areas, were formulated at Sacramento last Monday by Deputy Forester W. B. Rider.

With the return of State Forester M. B. Pratt, now on a tour of inspection in the northern park and forest districts, definite steps probably will be taken to enlist the aid of state auto clubs and similar organizations in forming the vigilante committee, Rider asserted.

The vigilante committee, which will be composed of some 10,000 motorists, according to present plans, would be particularly valuable in securing enforcement of the state law prohibiting autoists from throwing burning matches or tobacco from their machines, the deputy forester declared. Each member of the committee, while traveling on the highway, would be charged with the responsibility of securing the license number of any motorist violating the fire law.

To facilitate organization of an effective volunteer organization, members of the committee will be issued membership cards, it is planned. It is possible that a card system also will be perfected for reporting the license numbers of violators, the location of fires caused by their carelessness together with other necessary information in prosecuting the offenders.

The forestry vigilantes would also be expected to report incendiary fires, or blazes caused by open mufflers or started by campers.

"Our report for the month just ended," declared Rider, "shows that 25 per cent of the fires were caused by motorists throwing cigars or cigarettes from their machines. In several cases, prosecutions have been carried out successfully, but our efficiency in this work would be more than trebled by a volunteer organization of motorists pledged to obey the law and help in enforcing it."

"To date our fire losses this year have been exceedingly low, due largely to an augmented fire patrol, and the wholehearted co-operation of citizens and other state departments. As an example of the real interest which private citizens have in the work of conserving our forests, the suggestion for the formation of the citizens' committee was made by A. M. Everson, 559 North street, Oakland, as a result of his experience in fighting blazes started by careless smokers."

The area burned over thus far this year totals 3,402 acres, of which grazing land represented 3,189 acres. Eleven fires were reported set by cigarette smokers, five were listed as incendiary, and an equal number were caused by campers.

RODEO AT SALINAS SET FOR JULY 20-24

Ten carloads of wild horses from the ranges of Nevada, Montana and Idaho will be brought to Salinas for the California Rodeo to be staged in that city, July 20 to 24 inclusive, according to an announcement by Arthur Hebborn, president of the rodeo. The horses will be used in the world's championship bucking horse contest which will be a feature of the rodeo.

All the color and glamour of the early days of the West, when the one big celebration of the year followed the annual roundup, will be depicted in the celebration. For days before the rodeo opens cowboys and cowgirls from surrounding ranches will ride into Salinas garbed in vivid-hued shirts, gay colored bandanas, "ten gallon" sombreros, high heeled boots and chaparajos.

The program includes bucking horse, bull riding, bulldogging, steer roping, wild cow milking contests, free for all horse races, an exhibition of fancy horses and cattle, polo pony contest and a wild horse race.

REFERENDUM MAY HALT HIGHWAY WORK

Completion of the new state highway system, of which the Bay Shore highway forms a unit in the primary group, will be held up as the result of a referendum of the highway funds allocation law passed by the last legislature, according to J. F. Vizzard, secretary of the Drymen's association. The referendum will automatically hold up the gas tax act, which provides for a 1 cent increase in the present 2 cent gasoline tax, enforcement of which is effective January 1. The referendum on this bill must gather about 57,000 signatures and must be filed by July 29. It will be placed on the ballot in November, 1928.

Modern Dancer Needs

Supply of Calories

Hostesses should lay in a heavy supply of refreshments when they expect to entertain guests who like to display their Charleston proficiency, says the Kansas City Star. An account of an exhaustive survey of the energy consumed in dancing made by a group of Scandinavian scientists at the physiological institute of the University of Helsingfors, has just been received at Washington which sets down in precise figures the number of calories used in different kinds of dances.

The waltz went to the bottom of the list with 3.99 calories used per hour per kilogram of body weight. The schottische, beloved of grandfather and grandmother, scored .02 of a point below the modern fox-trot, using 4.76 calories while the latter required 4.78. The polka, another institution of grandmother's day, needed 7.56 calories an hour, while the mazurka, evidently the fastest dance the learned Scandinavians could get anyone to practice for them, took 10.87 calories, or almost twice the amount of energy consumed by the stonecutter plying his trade.

It was her assurance that quieted him. She had known from the first he would tell as she had known from the first he had done it. He relaxed and sank back, his eyes closing, and the doctor motioned them to go. Flora followed them to the door and held them there a moment to repeat what she had said—as if, like him, wanting to rid her mind of all its secret agony. It wasn't surmise; she had seen him. When she had turned from the water after her attempt to catch the body she had had a clear view of him stealing through the pine wood, moving noiselessly and watching the house.

"He never knew it," she said. "That night when you, Mr. Williams, nearly caught me on the stairs, I was going to see him, say I knew what he'd done and that I'd help him and lie for him and stand by him. Oh, yes—I don't care what I tell now. He was my husband, I'd loved him and he'd been cursed—cursed and destroyed."

The men closed the door softly as upon the dead. What they had heard and left behind them had taken the zest from their accomplishment and in the glow of the hall lights their faces looked drawn and hollowed with fatigue. Rawson drew out his watch—half past two. The best thing they could do was to get a little sleep, and stepping gently, as befitted a place where so dark a doom had fallen, he and Williams passed into the library.

Sleep was far from Bassett. He would like to have seen Anne, but it would have been inhuman to rouse her, and he went toward the living room where he could think in quiet. He dropped into a chair, his breath expelled with a groaning note, then heard Anne's voice from the gallery above:

"I've been waiting for you. May I come down?"

There she was, dressed, leaning against the railing.

"Come," he beckoned, his heart expanding, his depression lightened, and as she disappeared he pulled up a chair for her. She came in, soft-footed across the rugs, with the whispering words:

"I couldn't rest till I'd seen you and heard. He's told?"

"Everything." They sat, facing each other, close together. "It's solved and ended—the Gull Island murder."

"Is it all right for you to tell me?"

It was all right and he told her.

"So, as it turns out, Anne dearest, all that misery you and I went through was unnecessary."

"Yes," she said slowly. "It wasn't Joe, he wasn't in it at all. But I don't understand. I've been sitting in my room while you were with Stokes thinking about it and I can't make it out. Hugh—she leaned forward and rested her hand on his knee, dropping her voice though no one was there to hear—"this is what I can't explain—how did I see in here last night?"

Bassett's answer was prompt, delivered in the brisk tone of common sense:

"I can. It's very simple. You didn't see anybody."

"You think I imagined it?"

"I know you did. Just consider: You were in a wrought-up condition, you expected to see him, came down for that purpose. The room was almost dark, quiet dark under the gallery where you say he came from. After what you'd gone through—first a murder, then a suspicion that would have undermined the strongest nerves—you were in a state to see anything."

She continued to stare at the light, her face set in troubled thought.

"I suppose that could be."

"Why, Anne dear, it must have been. It could have happened to anyone. And there's another point—if it had been Joe, wouldn't he have spoken to you, one question even to find out what was going on, what we were doing?"

"Yes, yes. I've thought of that. It didn't occur to me at the time. But he would have said something."

"Of course he would. You never saw anything more substantial than a shadow in the moonlight."

She was silent for a moment then said:

"Well, where is Joe? What's he doing?"

"Gone off on some business of his own. You were telling the truth when you told Rawson and Williams that Joe's actions weren't always calculable, weren't you?" He saw her answering nod. "Well, he's evidently chosen the occasion of his leaving the island to light out in some new direction. You can't tell what may have been in his head—a joke on Jimmy Travers, on us, any sort of lark or tomfoolery. We'll find it all out soon."

"Come," he said, rising and drawing her to her feet. "There's no good bothering about that any more. Leave it to me and when we've got through the rest of this horrible business I'll look around for him. And anyway, he'll see it in the papers, and if he wants to show up, he'll do it himself within the next few days. Now you must go to bed and let your poor tired brain rest."

They walked to the door and there he caught her against his breast and looked into her face:

"It's all over—that fighting and struggling alone, Anne. After this we'll be together, as soon as we can get away from here and find a clergyman to marry us."

They kissed and parted, Bassett going to his room—he could sleep now—and Anne faring slowly up the stairs to hers.

CHAPTER XIV

Anyone watching Gull Island from the shore would have seen the yellow shape of one bright window set like a small golden square in the darkness. The bright window was Anne's.

Panic Had Seized Him and He Had Made a Rush From the Place.

and over against it Anne sat on the side of the bed looking at the floor. She sat perfectly still, held in a staring concentration of thought, reviewing the happenings of the night.

While Bassett had talked to her she had accepted his theory. His belief in it had been so absolute and it was so plausible. Of course a person in her state might have imagined anything. And as she dwelt on the sentence to persuade herself, the vision of the dim shadowy room rose before her with the figure coming toward her from the darkness of the gallery, moving spiritlike as an hallucination might move. But as the memory grew in vividness the shape took form and solidity, the slim boy's shape. She saw again its rapid advance, its sudden stoppage at her words, its lightning-quick turn and soundless flight. The snap of the closing door came to her mind as a last confirmation and she knew it was no delusion.

"I did," she said in a whisper, and raised her eyes as if confronting a doubter with the truth. "I knew it—I did see somebody."

Somebody!

The word struck her ear with a startling effect, an effect of discovery, of impending disclosures. Her body shrank together as if in fear of them, her riveted glance grew fixed as a sleep-walker's. She lost all sense of her surroundings, her entire being contracted to a point of inner activity. Before that intensified mental vision a series of pictures passed like the slides in a magic lantern—Shine's photograph, the worn, wide-eyed face of Sybil; Joe playing Sebastian, his costume, his movements, a replica of Viola's; the living room as they heard the shot, dusk falling outside; in the summer house—with its shrouding vines—it would have been almost dark.

Suddenly a recollection flashed up, clairvoyantly distinct—Joe at the flat trying to make Bassett give him the part of Sebastian, imitating Sybil's walk. That picture brought her to her feet, brought a smothered cry to her lips. The spots of light had joined, run together in a leaping illumination.

On the bureau lay the key of Joe's trunk that she had brought from his room after their last interview. She snatched it up and ran to the door, out of it, along the gallery. In Joe's room she turned on the light and unlocked his trunk. She went through it to the bottom looking for his Sebastian costume. It was gone, every appointment of it. She had not needed the proof, she knew that she would not find it, that it was Joe, dressed in that costume, Stokes had killed.

The rest of it—Sybil alive, hiding somewhere! She saw the gray dawn on the window—the night was over, the house would soon be stirring. She locked the trunk, turned off the light and stole out on the gallery. She did not go back to her room but kept on down the hall to the top floor staircase. Half way up she heard from the floor above a sound, so faint, so furtive, that it would only have been audible in the dead dawn hush. She made a rush upward sending her voice, low-keyed but passionately urgent, ahead of her:

"Sybil, Sybil, if it's you, wait. It's Anne. I'm coming to help you."

The door of the bedroom opposite the stair-head was open. Against the pale light of the window, poised with one hand resting on the raised sash, was a boy's figure—surely the figure she had seen in the living room two nights before. It was so completely boyish, the cropped round head, the knickerbockers and belted jacket, that she could not yet be sure and went forward with slackened gait, peering and murmuring fearfully:

"Sybil, it is you?"

The figure left the window, came nearer, silently, creepingly, with a hand raised for caution. She saw the face then, pinched and haggard, strangely altered with the curling frame of hair clipped close, but still Sybil's.

It was so extraordinary—such a gulf of unknown happenings lay between them—that at first they said nothing. Anne spoke first.

"Joe," she said. "It's Joe that's dead."

"Yes. Do they know?"

"They know nothing. They think it was you. It's all over, Stokes has told. But, oh, what is it? I can't understand—it's like a fearful dream."

The words died away and a sudden violent trembling shook her. With the joints of her knees like water she sank on the side of the bed, gripping the other with her shaking hands, pulling her down beside her.

"Tell me, tell me," she implored. "Why is he dead? Why did he pretend he was you? What was he doing?"

They sat, clinging together, two small huddled figures in the gray light. Though the house below was as silent as the tomb they spoke in subdued voices, question, answer, surmise. Each knew a different aspect of the story, brought her own knowledge of Joe's motives and actions. In that whispered exchange they pieced together the separate facts, combined them in coherent sequence and came to a final enlightenment.

Joe had met his death in his last effort as a police spy, his last effort to get the Parkinson reward. Leaving his room to come down and make ready for his departure, he had heard the voices of Stokes and Sybil in the living room. Sybil remembered Stokes' upward look and question about someone moving in the gallery—Joe creeping to concealment behind the arch. The nature of their conversation would have held him listening: here was his last opportunity to get the information he sought. He had heard the rendezvous in the summer house. Its open situation offered no hiding place outside, but knowing that it would be almost dark inside, he had conceived the idea of putting on his Sebastian costume and impersonating Sybil.

His room was next to Sybil's. He had heard her come upstairs and from his window could command the Point. When Shine left it he had gone down, passed the balcony where Stokes was waiting, and hearing his following footsteps, moved with that close imitation of Sybil's gait to the summer house. There the dim light and the drooping curls of his wig enabled him to carry through the deception. Stokes' wild speech, followed by the drawing of the pistol, had terrified him. Confronted by a man armed and half mad, panic had seized him and he had made a rush from the place.

Visit to Birthplace Upset "Divine Sarah"

It is generally believed, and the Encyclopedia Britannica records, that Sarah Bernhardt, the noted actress, was born in Paris and that her parents were a mixture of French and Dutch and of Jewish descent, but the most recent version of her origin says she was born in Amsterdam, Holland, of Jew parents. The authority for this version is Lyon van Lier of Amsterdam, who revealed the purported true story of the actress' birth at a dinner in Amsterdam not long after Sarah Bernhardt's death. He claimed that her father was his brother. Van Lier related that once when the Divine Sarah visited Amsterdam, she sought him and asked to be shown the three vital questions you have asked about used car allowances

1 "What is my present car worth?"

Answer: Your used car has only one fundamental basis of value: that is what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.

2 "Why should dealers in different makes of cars offer me allowances that differ materially?"

Answer: Your used car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.

3 "Is it true that the largest allowance offered means the best deal for me?"

Answer: The largest allowance is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not. An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.

First judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your used car. Remember that after all you are making a purchase, not a sale.

ANITA WHITNEY PARDONED

As had been hoped for by her many friends, Charlotte Anita Whitney has been pardoned by Governor Young, and has been saved from a term of from one to fourteen years in San Quentin prison for violation of the criminal syndicalism act. Governor Young on Monday last issued an unconditional pardon.

Conviction of the 60-year-old social welfare worker of Oakland was recently upheld by the United States Supreme Court, and only the action of Governor Young in issuing an unconditional pardon prevented her from being taken to San Quentin to serve the sentence.

Governor Young, in granting the pardon, said that he had reached his decision to do so after long investigation and study. "I have become completely convinced," said the governor,

"that under all the circumstances involved, a pardon for Miss Whitney must issue. I am aware that many may not agree with me in this decision, but I would only suggest that my belief that an equally thorough study would inevitably bring a similar conclusion on the part of practically every doubter."

Thousands of friends of Miss Whitney, who do not sympathize with her political views, will be glad to know that the case is now closed. Miss Whitney never in her life advocated violence. On the contrary she abhors war and violence.

VICTORY HIGHWAY COMPLETED

It is expected that at least 1,000 people will be conveyed by rail, automobile and airplane to spend San Francisco day, Sunday, June 26, at the Reno, Nevada, exposition. A smaller delegation would not be adequately representative of San Francisco's appreciation of what the exposition is to celebrate—the completion of the Victory highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific—and what the new transcontinental route means in the way of benefiting this section of California, particularly San Francisco. For every intelligent resident of this part of California must be aware that it will bring to the Golden Gate many thousands of coast-bound motor tourists who otherwise would be diverted either north or south from Salt Lake City.

The completion of the Victory highway means a great deal to Northern California, and its people have good reason to celebrate.

BOLSHEVISM'S ANTIQUITY

A recent communication from China contains the interesting information that anarchy and bolshevism are by no means modern tendencies. It is claimed that an ancient Chinese philosopher, Chuang-Tze, who lived three hundred years before Christ, found these conditions to exist even in those early times. At the present time China is proving a fertile field for the advocates of such destructive philosophies, and much of the turmoil through which the country is passing can be ascribed to the teachings of opposition to constituted law and order.

FERTILIZING THE AIR

For years the problem of enriching the soil by the application of artificial fertilizers has been growing in importance, and great strides have been made recently in the fixation of nitrogen from the air for this purpose.

In addition to the stimulation of plant growth through increased soil fertility, it has also been discovered that such stimulation may be effected by the enrichment of the air which the plants "breathe."

It is well known that green leaves procure carbon dioxide from natural air, of which it forms three parts in ten thousand parts of air. Late experiments with plants grown under glass in an atmosphere richer in carbon dioxide demonstrate that yields are thereby greatly increased.

Doubling the percentage of carbon dioxide in the air surrounding the plants increased the yield of tomatoes by 20 per cent. Trebling the percentage increased the yield by 16 per cent. In these experiments the enriched air was applied only an hour or two each day.

While this method of increasing production may never become practicable in the case of field crops covering large tracts of land, Dr. E. E. Slosson, the eminent chemist, believes that it may eventually prove profitable in the case of certain vegetables grown within limited areas.

At any rate, the idea is interesting, and its development may possibly provide additional means of food production, should future necessity justify the expense involved in its employment.

CASH FOR FLOOD AREA

At the request of President Coolidge, bankers and business leaders of the country responded promptly to the need for financial aid for the flood-stricken districts of the Mississippi valley. Cash to be made available for loans amounting to $1,750,000 was subscribed in three days.

This amount was to be matched, dollar for dollar, by local subscriptions in the flooded areas themselves, making a total of $3,500,000 immediately available in cash. This amount, according to Secretary Hoover, would provide a total credit power of about $10,000,000, to be loaned to planters, and in some cases to merchants and others.

The fund was raised under the direction of President Pierson of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and will be handled by a holding corporation to be known as the Flood Credits Corporation. In announcing the success of the movement, Mr. Pierson said:

"This response is another indication of the sympathetic interest of the industrial and commercial interests of the country in constructive and sound efforts to assist critical agricultural conditions when they arise."

Government estimates place the area flooded at 15,000 square miles, and the economic loss at two hundred to four hundred million dollars.

The magnitude of the disaster, one of the greatest that has ever befallen the United States, has impressed the entire country with the imperative necessity for future flood control, regardless of what it may cost.

The Earl of Dalhousie of Gravesend, England, would not accept an estate worth $30,000, willed to him by a woman miser, and the money will go to charity.

Sheep without tails have been developed after many years of selective breeding. Which shows what may be accomplished by keeping a definite end in view.

RESERVOIRS AND POWER

Quite a lot of loose talk and writing is being done in connection with the national problem of flood control, particularly with respect to the establishment of reservoirs to regulate the flow of flood waters.

The most deceptive suggestion on the subject, which has been given wide publicity, is that these proposed reservoirs would furnish great power possibilities, and also aid navigation.

Now, anyone who reflects on the problem should be able to understand reservoirs for flood control would have to be kept practically empty during normal times, in order that they might collect and hold surplus waters when the floods come. Empty reservoirs do not aid navigation, neither do they furnish power. The interests of flood control and power development directly clash under the reservoir plan.

While considerable secondary power might be developed by the reservoir system, it seems doubtful that it would justify the investment necessary to handle it.

We are inclined to agree with the army engineers that the only practical means of flood control is higher and stronger levees, or a deeper river bed, with widening of river channels where they are now too narrow.

Power development can hardly be linked successfully with any system of flood control.

GREATER INDIVIDUAL OUTPUT

That Americans more and more are becoming an efficient people, is shown by a study of the manufactures census figures of the Department of Commerce.

The physical volume of manufactures produced per person increased nearly 50 per cent from 1899 to 1925, reflecting a growth of 180 per cent in quantity of production and of less than 90 per cent in number of persons engaged.

Expansion in output per person has been particularly large during recent years, amounting to 10 per cent in the two years from 1923 to 1925, and to 40 per cent in the six years from 1919 to 1925.

Growth in output per person may be attributed to increasing utilization of machinery and electric power, introduction of various sorts of labor-saving devices and methods, growth of mass production of standardized articles, elimination of waste, planning of production in relation to general business conditions, and other economies resulting from improvements in methods and management.

A PUBLIC SALE IN '49

Interesting sidelights on the manners and customs of by-gone days are found in old newspapers and advertisements, one of which was recently reproduced by an exchange, which quotes a public sale announcement published at Versailles, Ky., seventy-eight years ago.

Some may wonder why anyone possessed of the large and varied assortment of worldly goods listed would want to leave Kentucky. Anyway, here is the advertisement:

"Having sold my farm, and as I am leaving for Oregon Territory by oxen team on March 1, 1849, I will sell all my personal property, except two oxen teams (Ben and Buck and Lon and Jerry), consisting of the following:

"Two milk cows, 1 grey mare and colt, 1 pair oxen, 1 yoke, 1 baby yoke, 2 ox carts, 1 iron plow with wood mold board, 800 feet weatherboards, 1,500 fence rails, 1 60-gallon soap kettle, 85 sugar troughs, 10 gallons maple syrup, 1 barrel Johnson-Miller whisky 7 years old, 20 gallons apple brandy, 1 40-gallon copper still, 2 spinning wheels, 30 pounds tallow, 1 large loom, 300 poles, 100 split hoops, 100 empty barrels, 4 sides leather, 12 wooden pitchforks, half interest in tan yards, 1 rifle with bullet molds and powder horn, soft soap, bacon, hams, lard, molasses, 6 head of fox hounds, all soft-mouthed but one.

"Also 6 negro slaves, 2 men, 2 boys and 2 mulatto wenches, all together to one party, as I will not separate them.

"Sale will begin at 8 a. m. Plenty to eat and drink."

EQUAL TREATMENT

Former members of the military and naval forces of "allied nations" will be admitted to hospitals under the jurisdiction of the United States Public Health Service, for examination or treatment in common with other beneficiaries of the United States Veterans' Bureau, when such admissions are made upon proper authority, the Director of the Bureau, Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, announced.

A properly certified schedule showing the name and identification of the patients hospitalized, the country under whose flag they served, the services rendered or article furnished, and other pertinent data relating to the unit price and total charge, will be forwarded to the Bureau by the Public Health Service and appropriate action will be taken to reimburse the hospitals for their services.

FACTS ABOUT THE TELEPHONE

Over three billion dollars is invested in telephone plant and equipment in this country. In proportion to population, Michigan has five times as many telephones as Great Britain. Fifteen of the original eighty telephone subscribers in the city of Seattle are still living. The Wall Street Journal declares that more than 80,000 people in Illinois own telephone securities. On the night of the municipal election in Chicago, the Chicago Tribune received 40,000 telephone calls inquiring as to the result of the election. Fifteen years ago there were 46,602 telephones in the state of Louisiana. Now there are 68,000 in the city of New Orleans alone and 135,000 in the entire state. At the end of the first quarter of 1927, there was invested in telephone plants in the United States, $3,370,000,000 and the gross operating revenues reached $968,000,000.

ENGINEERS ARE HELPLESS

The Mississippi flood was a disaster of the first magnitude, a calamity so huge that it immediately aroused the wish to do something to prevent, if possible, its recurrence. Reservoirs at the headwaters of the Mississippi and its tributaries, reforestation, changed farming methods in the upper Mississippi Valley were suggested before the floods had reached their peak, but the engineers rejected them all. "The bulk of the flood water comes from the lower valley," they said. "Reservoirs in the upper valley are good for regulating the summer flow and creating water power, but they can't prevent floods. Reforestation is fine and most desirable, but the really dangerous floods do not originate on the cut-over lands of Minnesota and Wisconsin, on the slopes of the Rockies. They come from both sides of the central and lower river. What we need is more, bigger, better and higher levees."

Even this remedy won't provide absolute protection. Before the white man came with his plow and harrow, the Mississippi left its banks every spring and spread over an enormous territory on either side. They fenced it out with levees. The more levees they built, the less room the river had to spread sideways, the higher it had to rise in its restricted channel.

This spring's flood reached record heights not because the Mississippi carried a record-breaking volume of water, but because the mouth of the funnel through which it must flow to the sea was narrower than ever. The Missouri was not in flood; neither was the Ohio. Had these two giants carried proportionately as much water at the lower tributaries, nothing could have saved New Orleans except the breaking of every levee north of the city. Against such a combined rise the engineers are helpless. —June Sunset.

TEACH PROTECTIVE HABITS

The general understanding which the people of the United States have of financial matters has been developed by our progressive banking institutions.

Progressive banks today not only encourage the public to save and invest money, but they are showing them how to perpetuate its earning power for dependents through the establishment of trust funds, including the modern life insurance trust.

Thus banking is helping to eliminate necessity for old-age pensions and similar forms of paternalism as practiced in Europe.

When your careful bakings are disheartening — The Oven Heat Control will help you

There's many a good recipe which has been carefully followed and only turns out fairly well.

And there's many a young wife and some older ones too, whose bakings are disheartening. The reason you probably know—the oven wasn't right.

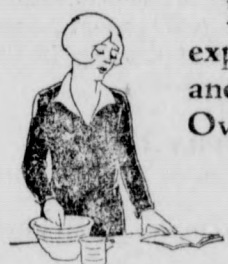

Those years of experience in estimating the oven's temperature are no longer necessary. For the Oven Heat Control on the new Gas Range measures the oven's temperature just as accurately as you measure and mix your costly ingredients. In measuring and mixing you eliminate guesswork. With the Oven Heat Control you eliminate it from baking, too.

Let us or one of the local range dealers explain more fully how to bake your cakes and other foods perfectly by means of the Oven Heat Control on the new Gas Range.

HORN HONKING STIRS DANIELS

Expert Drafts List of Ten Rules for Driving a Car on Sunday.

Ten special rules for the regulation of Sunday automobile traffic, in which the blowing of the horn upon all occasions is stressed, have been compiled by Harry Daniels in Thrift Magazine. Observance of these rules will insure drivers a portion of that highway confection known as traffic jam. Here are the rules:

1. On account of only taking out your car on Sundays, you are entitled to a lot of special privileges. For one thing, you can drive anywhere on the road you please. This entitles you to select your own ditch.

2. You are allowed as many assistant drivers as the back-seat will hold, provided they all give instructions at once. Don't neglect to blow your horn.

3. Whenever you get around a corner without hitting anything, stick out your left hand.

4. If you happen to run into a tree or fence, go to the nearest policeman and file a complaint. People must learn to be more careful about where they leave their trees and fences standing around outside. Be sure and blow your horn.

5. Take no back talk from any traffic cop. They don't understand the rules and get a good driver all mixed up. If one of them gets too fresh let him have a drink out of your flask.

6. In case your car starts running backwards by mistake, just let it go till one of the assistant drivers can find a wrench to use on your head.

Keep Horn Blowing.

7. If you run out of gas, put on a new tire. If the darned engine dies on you, let down your top and tighten up the bolts on your running board. Keep the horn blowing.

8. Whenever you find it is going to be possible for you to crash into another car, notify your assistant drivers at once so they can all be thinking up a lot of pretty names to call the other driver.

9. If another driver runs into you, stop whatever is left of your car and jump out at once so he can knock you down without needless delay.

10. If you find yourself tied up with a lot of other cars, don't try to get out, but be satisfied just to work yourself around so that nobody can get out. And keep that old horn going.

Hugging Inside Curves Dangerous for Drivers

Perhaps it is because every one knows that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points that a majority of motorists hug the inside of a curve when climbing a hill. It is well to remember in such a case that the shortest way is not always the best.

In hill climbing the outside of a curve, while longer, always is easier on the car than the inside. It simply is a practical application of the law of mechanical advantage. To climb up the longer way the engine is forced to make more revolutions, and therefore it is capable of lifting the machine that much easier.

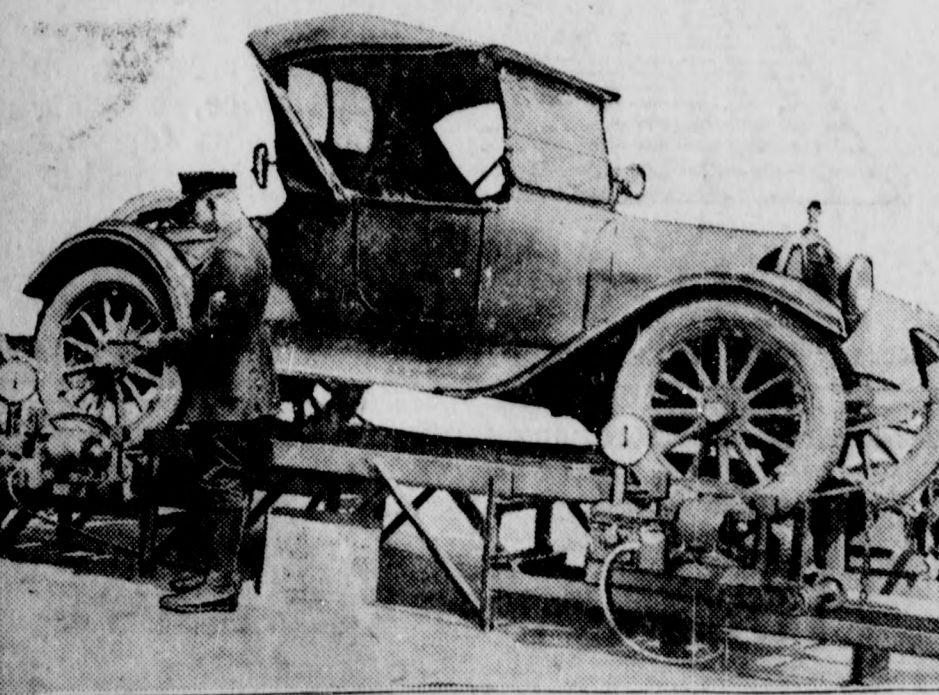

Regardless of the path the driver takes, the engine is required to lift the car the same distance. Taking the outside is a matter of spreading out the work over a greater number of revolutions.

Operation of Piston at High Speed Is Big Feat

At a speed of 60 miles an hour, the pistons of the ordinary automobile engine are traveling at a rate of 30 miles every 60 minutes. Yet, they reverse their direction about every five inches of the way.

That this process can be continued without audible knocking of the pistons against the cylinder walls or banging of the connecting rod bearings is one of the greatest single achievements of modern engineering.

NOVEL DEVICE TESTS EACH WHEEL BRAKE

The first public demonstration of a new automobile brake-testing device has shown that 98 per cent of Washington's (D. C.) machines are at fault as far as perfect equalization of brakes is concerned. The machine to be tested is run on a platform, each wheel resting on a set of rollers which revolve at a speed which makes their pull correspond to the ordinary road pull. A separate gauge for each brake tells just how efficient each brake is.

First Rule to Remember in Removing Mud Stains

The first rule to remember in taking the mud stains off a car is that they should be taken off at the first possible moment after the mud has fastened itself upon the car. Every minute of delay means so much more difficulty and so much more likelihood of a permanent spot. The reason for this is that mud will fasten itself very securely to the finishing coat of the car as it dries. When it becomes thoroughly dry and the mud is removed it simply takes the varnish along with it and leaves an unprotected spot of color on the surface. Very often this spot will not show for a short time, but as soon as it is exposed to a little wear or hard weather it will become visible.

Water is the only cure for hard mud, but water must even be used judiciously or it will be of as much harm as good. The garden hose is called into use by the suburbanite in cleaning the car. On this hose there is a nozzle which is adjustable to throw anything from a spray down to a thin, hard stream that has force enough to carry it 20 or 30 feet. This nozzle should be arranged to allow the water to come forth in a gentle stream so that when it strikes the body it only has a flowing or washing action without the suggestion of impact. This will dissolve the mud, removing it grain by grain.

Test Relative Comfort While in Automobile

In tests of relative comfort in motoring the United States bureau of standards in Washington has developed a new instrument, an accelerometer, which records the degree of comfort or discomfort minutely. The instrument was devised by Dr. H. C. Dickinson, chief of the division of heat and power. The device measures the acceleration of automobile seats caused by changes in speed and from vertical motion. Through its use it is hoped seats will be devised which will be much more comfortable. The photograph shows Dr. C. Ritchie testing the device.

AUTOMOBILE ITEMS

The United States makes 786 different models of motor vehicles.

If a man has enough relatives, he can easily go broke running a filling station.

The woman driver who gave us more than half the road the other day was in a ditch.

The world's champion idiot is the man who honks his horn to make the automatic traffic light give him the "Go" signal.

Another need is for an automobile that won't get all scratched up when it tries conclusions with a locomotive.

Tightening the body bolts of an automobile is not the hard job it sounds if the owner really is intent upon removing rattles.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

A hunter of Corona who decided he would try out a couple of Chinese ringneck pheasants, is in jail in San Bernardino county in default of $1500 bail, according to reports reaching the executive offices of the Fish and Game Commission. The birds were killed on April 19 and shortly afterwards Deputy W. C. Malone nailed the offender and brought him into court where he was assessed a fine of $300 or ninety days in jail. When the defendant appealed the case, figuring the sentence was too stiff, the judge fixed the bail at $1500 and at the last reports he was still in the bastille. The judge's action meets with the full approval of the officials of the commission. B. D. Marx Greene, executive officer, declared upon receipt of the report of the case.

Horse racing is coming back to California with a galaxy of thoroughbreds from the West and East competing in a thirty-seven-day meeting on the Tanforan track, San Francisco, from October 27 to December 10. Plans for resumption of the sport were announced by Howard Spreckles, secretary of the Pacific Coast Jockey club, and Judge Joseph A. Murphy, noted race track figure and presiding steward in the days of racing at the old Ingleside track. The San Francisco handicap will be the crowning event on the racing schedule, for which a purse of $25,000 will be offered. Other rich awards will be offered, none less than $1000, to attract the best of turfdom for the greatest racing program in the history of the Pacific Coast.

Thirty-five million gallons of water daily were pumped from the Los Angeles water department's emergency wells near Van Nuys, to help supply the city of Los Angeles while repairs were being made to the Owens Valley Aqueduct which was damaged by dynamites in the Owen Valley district. There are fourteen of the wells sunk into the beds of San Fernando Valley for emergency purposes. The flow from the wells keeps water officials from drawing too heavily from the system's large surface reservoirs, from which water sufficient to supply Los Angeles at the rate of 140,000,000 gallons a day, while damages to the Aqueduct are repaired.

Californians crave municipal entertainment, according to a report by State Controller Ray L. Riley showing that the 264 cities in the state spent $1,007,626 in 1926 to amuse their inhabitants. The money was spent for carnivals, musicales, celebrations, etc., that annually occur in every city, town and hamlet. San Francisco expended the largest sum for entertainment, her contribution to the total being $473,363. Expenditures by other large cities were: Oakland, $53,272; San Diego, $37,471; Sacramento, $25,141; Berkeley, $9,154; Long Beach, $185,565; Pasadena, $14,980; Fresno, $1234; Stockton, $15,327.

The Taft Union High School's physical plant ranks among the finest of the United States, according to a survey just completed by the California Taxpayers' Association. The rating was established through employment of the Strayer & Englehardt system, which showed a score of 892 points out of a possible 1000. The tax experts declared less than 8 per cent of American high schools have a rating as high. The Strayer & Englehardt system takes into consideration only the physical condition of the plant, not the scholarship.

Unmarried school teachers are but "immature novices" according to a petition circulated in Riverbank to force the trustees of the Riverbank Grammar School to employ married women as school teachers. The petition, signed largely by farmers, asks the board to resign. The move against the board began several weeks ago when the trustees made a ruling that only unmarried women or persons who must make their own living, be employed. The ruling further specifies that teachers must reside in Riverbank.

Eighteen students of the University of California finished their first cruise on a United States battleship as potential officers in the American Navy, when the U. S. S. Tennessee arrived in San Francisco on Tuesday, June 14. The students are members of the campus Naval R. O. T. C. Unit which was organized last year under government instructions. Lt. Com. Ernest L. Gunther was in charge of the cruise. On graduation the students will have the same rating as graduates of Annapolis.

The whole town of Oakbar, Siskiyou County, was sold last week for $7500. Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Morgan closed the deal with E. C. Boring & Son of Yuba City, Sutter County. The town consists of a general store, a post office, a dance hall, a service station and several homes and cabins.

Giving impetus to California's campaign against smokers who throw lighted cigars, cigarettes and matches from automobiles, Judge Clendenning of Hopland recently fined two men $50 each for throwing cigarettes. The fines are the heaviest on record in the State.

W. B. Lewis, superintendent of Yosemite National Park has announced that henceforth the National Park Service will maintain the nine-mile Hetch Hetchy road connecting Mather Station with the Hetch Hetchy reservoir and that it will be operated as a toll road.

The city trustees of Chula Vista have given their consent to the local American Legion Post for the erection of a building in a recently acquired athletic park.

Enrollment in part-time schools of the State of California has increased from 7000 in the year 1920-21, to more than 22,000 in the year 1925-26, according to a survey just completed.

Although popular opinion has made the modern college student a Godless infidel, surveys by the University of California Y. M. C. A., reveal that 65.5 percent of the freshmen students have some church preference, with the Presbyterian church the most popular of all. Of the 1080 students who had no preference, 650 were men and 430 women.

H. K. Weeks, supervisor of wine control, is in California to confer with grape growers and others in the grape industry on general questions affecting wine production. Weeks will stay in California some time, to work out more satisfactory methods of supervision of manufacture of wine and governmental cooperation with grape growers and others.

Completion of the old mission towers at Santa Barbara, the only remaining unfinished portion of the historic building which was partially destroyed in the earthquake two years ago, will be undertaken at once. It is planned to have the towers completed in two months, so that the finished mission will greet visitors to the old Spanish days' fiesta on August 11, 12 and 13.

Over 300 persons from all parts of Northern California attended the opening of the giant Melones dam power plant June 11. The power plant, costing $2,500,000, will use water from the Melones dam, joint property of the Oakdale and South San Joaquin irrigation districts. The dam, which cost $2,200,000, was completed last fall and has been in use this year supplying water for irrigation in the two districts.

A total of sixty-three advanced military science students of the University of California at Los Angeles have signed up for the annual summer training course given by the government at the Monterey Presidio. The camp lasts six weeks from June 17 to July 28. Transportation charges and all other costs are furnished by the war department. The camp is open only to university and college R. O. T. C. members.

Dick Nunnally, printer on a Stockton newspaper, and Montague Rolfe, a Florida aviator, will be contestants for the $25,000 prize offered for the San Francisco to Honolulu flight it is reported. The two men were engaged in flying together for some time in Florida. Rolfe has received the necessary backing from a Florida concern and the two men will be ready for a flight in about sixty days. Their plane will be shipped to California in about thirty days.

As a result of a lenient policy recently adopted toward outside visitors who go to Mexico to patronize the bars and cabarets and then return to Calexico more or less intoxicated, the City Jail there is empty for the first time in several years. The change of policy was inaugurated with the appointment of a new Police Chief, as the result of protests from local merchants that the unfriendly attitude of the former police department was creating ill will toward the town and destroying business.

Anticipating a throng of people which will tax the housing capacity of the town of Alturas, Modoc county, to the limit, the officials of the Alturas Roundup Association are broadcasting the message, "Plenty to eat, but bring your blankets." The seventh annual Alturas Roundup will be held there on July 2nd, 3rd, and 4th. Each year the local rodeo is attracting more riders of the first water and names famous in rodeo shows all over the country will be found on this year's program.

Exploding 180,000 pounds of dynamite in a single blast, the entire face of a mountain of lime in Tehachapi Valley will be lifted into the air and dropped into a 750,000-ton heap of rocks. This was the announcement of the Monolith Portland Cement Company, in preparing to blow up the mountain near the town of Monolith. Company officials have set the date for the explosion at about July 1, but it is quite probable that the charge may be held back until July 4, giving the holiday crowds a thrill.

To you who are planning vacation trips to the mountains: Smoking is now prohibited in all national forests in California. The only exceptions are, as heretofore, at certain improved camps and places of habitation. In the El Dorado, Stanislaus, Sierra, Sequoia, Inyo and Mono national forests the order will apply only to areas under 7,500 feet elevation, according to a bulletin issued by the United States Department of Agriculture forest service. The no-smoking regulation will remain in effect until the forest fire hazard is eliminated by the fall rains.

The City Planning and Building Company has announced its intention to file application for a permit with the San Francisco Board of Supervisors for a $75,000,000 tube running under San Francisco bay to Sausalito. The company proposes to ask for a fifty-year franchise to conduct a three-tier tube on a toll basis, with all classes of transportation to be handled. Cost of construction of the tube alone would be approximately $18,000,000 per mile, a total of $45,000,000 for the two and one-half miles which the tube is planned to run. Cost of terminals total $75,000,000.

Alexander Hamilton Man to Be Loved or Hated

How they hated him, and yet no public figure, save Washington, was so adored. Men were either Alexander Hamilton's frenzied enemies or else his unshaking followers. His flaming personality left no middle ground. From the day that he came to America from the West Indies, sent by charitable subscriptions to receive an education, genius set him apart from his fellows.

A boy of twenty, serving a gun, even the reserved Washington was won to him at once, and made him his military secretary; generals received his counsel eagerly, and congress covered before the lash of his tongue and pen.

Born out of wedlock, he moved as royally as a prince of the blood; fashioned with the exquisiteness of a Greek carving, his face was only saved from beauty by its strength; and that proud helmsman, Betty Schuyler, had given him her hand in gladness.—From "Sons of the Eagle," by George Creel.

THIS WOMAN FOUND RELIEF

After Long Suffering by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

In a little town of the middle West, was a discouraged woman. For four months she had been in such poor health that she could not stoop to put on her own shoes. Unable to do her work, unable to go out of doors or enjoy a friendly chat with her neighbors, life seemed dark indeed to Mrs. Daugherty.

Then one day, a booklet was left at her front door. Idly she turned the pages. Soon she was reading with quickened interest. The little booklet was filled with letters from women in conditions similar to hers who had found better health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I began taking the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Daugherty writes, "and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to everyone I see who has trouble like mine, and you can use these facts as a testimonial. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Ed. Daugherty, 1308 Orchard Ave., Muscatine, Iowa.
